Mariano Working To Block Compressor Station

By SCOTT JACKSON

Rep. Ronald Mariano is optimistic lawmakers' work at the state level will force the company proposing to build a natural gas compressor station in North Weymouth to drop its plan.

Spectra Energy-Enbridge has proposed building the 7,700-horsepower compressor station in North Weymouth on a parcel of land near the Fore River Bridge. Officials and residents from Weymouth, Quincy, Braintree and Hingham have rallied against the proposed compressor station. They have said the compressor station could worsen pollution levels in the Fore River Basin and the facility could be at risk of catching fire or exploding.

"Originally it was going to be one size and they unilaterally decided to make it bigger, which generated a whole bunch of problems – one with the types of gases it releases and when it releases, and it increases the probability of something major happening," said Mariano, whose districts includes Quincy Point and North Weymouth.

The proposal received initial approval from the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission in January 2017 and still requires several state permits.

Mariano, the House majority leader, said he hopes to make the site as unattractive as possible to get Spectra Energy-Enbridge to drop its plan.

Zoning Board Denies Curlew Road Plans

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Zoning Board of Appeals denied a request to construct a new three-unit residential building in the Adams Shore neighborhood.

Bartholomew O'Shea had applied for permission to tear down the single-family home at 10 Curlew Rd. and construct the three-unit building in its place. The property is in a Residence A zoning district, where only single-family homes are allowed by-right, and contains 12,000 square feet of land, according to the city assessors' online database.

The ZBA held a hearing on the request Aug. 27, but O'Shea was not in attendance. The board moved to deny the request with the

A NEW GAZEBO has been installed at Tobin Towers to provide shade and fresh air to the more than 250 residents who live at the Quincy Housing Authority residential building. QHA Executive Director James Marathas thanked Mayor Thomas Koch and the Community Preservation Committee for supporting the new gazebo. "The residents are very thankful and this gives them somewhere to escape the direct sun and be able to enjoy the fresh air. The Housing Authority is grateful for the support of the mayor and the Community Preservation Committee in assisting our residents. The gazebo adds a sense of community and gives tenants a place to gather and assists in eliminating isolation," Marathas said.

Mariano: State Could Be Leader In Wind Power

By SCOTT JACKSON

The Bay State could one day become a hub for offshore wind power, including the construction of the turbines and the ships that install them on the seafloor.

Rep. Ronald Mariano, the House majority leader, said lawmakers want to increase the amount the energy the state receives from offshore wind turbines and has the chance to do so off the South Coast. Wind turbines, and the ships that service them, could also be manufactured in the same area.

"We want to do some things around energy," Mariano, a Quincy Democrat, said in a recent interview.

"We've been very successful with our offshore wind and we're looking at ways to expand the amount of energy we get from offshore wind and we also want to become a leader in the building of wind turbines and the installation of turbines offshore as wind becomes an issue up and down the East Coast. We have the opportunity off the coast of New Bedford and Fall River to create the inary, based on the turnout in previous elections.

The three candidates running for mayor, in the order they will appear on the ballot for the preliminary, are: incumbent Thomas Koch of 249 Newbury Ave., Brenda Ryan of 14 Cranch St. and Tracey Dorgan of 108 Sherman St.

Koch was first elected mayor in 2007 and was re-elected to two-year terms in 2009, 2011 and 2013. In 2015, he was elected to a four-year term - the first in Quincy's history after voters approved doubling the mayoral term in a 2013 referendum. A win for Koch would make him the longest-serving mayor in the city's history. Two other mayors - Amelio Della Chiesa and James Sheets - each served for 12 years. Della Chiesa served for four years under a Plan E form of government and then eight years under Plan A; Sheets' entire tenure was under Plan A, the city's current form of government. The candidates in the Ward 1 race, by order of appearance on the ballot, are: Danielle Kempe of 1 Adams St., Joseph Murphy of 18 Macy St., and incumbent David McCarthy of 48 Whitney Rd.

McCarthy is seeking his second two-year term representing Ward 1 on the council. The district includes Adams Shore, Germantown, Houghs Neck, and parts of Quincy Center and Quincy Point.

The candidates in each race drew lots in August to determine ballot position for the preliminary election. For the final election, the incumbents will appear first on the ballot followed by the challengers in alphabetical order.

Absentee voting opened on Aug. 20 and will continue through noon on Monday, Sept. 9. Crispo said 157 absentee ballots had been cast as of Aug. 29. A total of 356 absentee ballots were cast in the last municipal preliminary election two years ago, which included a contest for the at-large council seats and three ward races. In the 2015 preliminary election, which included a mayoral race and one ward race, a total of 757 absentee ballots were cast.

The preliminary election will cost between $80,000 and $85,000, Crispo said, inclusive of all costs such as printing ballots, advertising for the election, and pay for election workers and police details.

The November election also includes races for the three at-large seats on the City Council and three School Committee seats, plus additional ward council races.

The deadline to register to vote in November is 8 p.m. on Oct. 16 and absentee balloting ends at noon on Nov. 4.

All three incumbent at-large councillors - Noel DiBona of 70 Chickatabot Rd., Nina Liang of 2 Williams St. and Anne Mahoney of 12 Ferriter St. - qualified for this year's ballot, as did challengers Frank Rubino of 5 Whiton Ave. and Joann Sullivan Cantor of 316 Fenno St. DiBona and Liang are seeking their third two-year terms and Mahoney is running for her second term.

The four candidates in the running for the three School Committee seats available in the fall election include incumbents Paul Bregoli of 80 Willow Ave. and Kathryn Hubley of 44 Marion St. as well as challengers Courtney Perdios of 86 Ruggles St. and Frank Santoro of 14 Lois Ter. Bregoli and Hubley are each seeking their third four-year term on the committee. Santoro previously served on the committee for two terms as well.

The third incumbent school board member, James DeAmicis, is not seeking a second term.

The two candidates to qualify in the race for the Ward 3 seat are incumbent Ian Cain of 8 Highpoint Cir. and challenger Eriberto Soto, Jr., of 627 Adams St. Cain is seeking his third two-year term.

Kirsten Hughes, the incumbent Ward 5 councillor, is not seeking re-election to the seat she has held since

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1930s postcard view of the Dennison Airport that was on the corner of East Squantum Street and Quincy Shore Drive in Atlantic. The corner is now the site of a Dunkin' Donuts shop. Harold Dennison, a Quincy architect and builder, built these buildings and a few dirt runways on filled marshland leased from the U.S. government in 1927. One of his financial partners was Amelia Earhart who later learned to fly here. In its heyday, the airport hosted a variety of activities including weekly air shows, private flying clubs, and scenic passenger flights for the public. In 1941, the government took back the property to expand the adjacent Squantum Naval Air Station. Housing was later built here to serve Squantum and South Weymouth naval personnel. Today, most of this land behind the donut shop is home to The Moorings at Squantum Gardens, a 223-unit rental community for seniors.

City Planning Special Day Of Recognition For World War II Veterans

We are all in the process of wrapping up the remembrance activities for the 75th Anniversary of the World War II D-Day landings in the invasion at Normandy. This time next year our nation will be conducting our celebrations of the 75th Anniversary of the end of World War II.

Seventy-five years is a full life span for most of us. Normal life expectancy in 1944 was less than 70 years. In 1944 the average age of the American soldier was 26, with the average being generally somewhat less for marines and sailors.

Over 16 million men and women served in World War II. Depending upon whose numbers you want to use, there is estimated to be between 325,000 and 400,000 of our country's WWII vets still with us today and we are losing them at the rate of about 400 per day. The youngest of our WWII vets, who would have been about 18 years of age in 1944, is now 93. The rate of attrition for these members of America's Greatest Generation is accelerating rapidly. How many of them will still be with us for that 75th End of WWII anniversary celebration?

The City of Quincy saw 8,456 of its citizens serve our nation in WWII. We can never forget that these are the very men and women who defended and preserved our freedom and our independent way of life during the most dangerous period that the world had ever seen. These are the men and women who returned to this City after having witnessed and experienced the horrific ravages, sufferings and horrors of that war and then devoted the rest of their productive lives to the security, the freedom and the prosperity of their families, their community and their country.

Here in Quincy, we can't allow those WWII veterans, who remain among us, to just fade away without any further recognition. We don't want to wait another entire year in order to honor these remaining vets on what will otherwise be, for them, a very special and appropriate 75th year anniversary celebration.

We also don't want to wait for a new census to tell us how many WWII vets remain with us.

If you know one of these living World War II vets here in Quincy, we are asking that you call the Quincy Veterans Services Office (617-376-1192) and give us their names and addresses so that we, as a city, can arrange a special ceremony, to be held later, possibly and ideally, around Pearl Harbor Day this year. We would also welcome the names and pictures of any of Quincy's 8,000 + WWII vets who are no longer with us.

The information will be kept confidential and the details, location and logistics for this Special Day of Recognition will be forthcoming as they evolve.

Quincy is extremely proud of all of our veterans and feel, resolutely, that our World War II veterans deserve to know that they still and will always, hold a special place in our hearts and lives. Help us identify them, wherever they are.

Help us say "Thank You" to them personally and to their memories, one more time, for all that they have given and all they have done, for our country and our city.

Gratefully,

George F. Nicholson,
Director
Quincy Veterans Services

Thank You From Houghs Neck Garden Club

The Houghs Neck Garden Club would like to thank all who made our House Tour a huge success. Everyone who bought or sold a ticket, bought an ad, donated a raffle prize or brought a friend, we thank you.

Of course this couldn't have happened at all without our terrific, generous home owners who opened their homes to us. A huge thanks to all of you!

Coming up in September, we have Susanne Mahler, teaching how to divide perennials, which could save a lot of money when trying to expand your garden. This meeting will be held at the Houghs Neck Community Center, at the corner of Sea Street and Macy Street, on Sept. 11th at 7 p.m. You don't need to be a member or know anything about gardening to attend. Come for the refreshments!

In October Ila Cox will teach the History of Tulips. This program will be at the Nut Island Community Room, Oct. 2nd at 7 p.m.

Work on the WWII Veterans Memorial is still progressing. New curbing has been installed and the bricks, with the names of all the Houghs Neck residents who served in WWII, are ready to be placed.

Because of the street paving, our timetable had to be moved up and a grand rededication is planned for early spring.

To become a member of the Garden Club call Joanne Bythrow at 617-347-3901 or email jbythrow37@comcast.net.

The Houghs Neck Garden Club is a member of the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts.

30% Voter Turnout Predicted

More than twice as many Quincy voters are expected to stay home than go to the polls in next Tuesday's Democratic and Republican state primaries.

City Clerk John M. Gillis predicted that no more than 30 percent of the city's 47,062 voters would cast ballots.

"And we'll be lucky if we get 30 percent," he added. "There are no real big battles to bring the voters out. The interest just doesn't seem to be there." (Editor's note: 22,630 or 48.4% of Quincy's eligible voters cast ballots.)

One Quincy name on the ballot, former Lt. Governor Francis X. Bellotti, was attempting to make a political comeback as a Democratic candidate for attorney general.

Perhaps the best race of all was for the state representative seat being vacated by Rep. Clifford H. Marshall who was running for Norfolk County sheriff. Candidates included Robert Cerasoli, Patrick Faherty, James Papile and Thomas Williams. (In November, Bellotti, Marshall and Cerasoli were election winners.)

SCHOOL ENROLLMENT DIPS TO 16,000

Fifty-four new teachers joined the Quincy Public School staff of over 1,000 greeting approximately 16,000 elementary, junior high and high school students during opening day of the 1974-1975 school year.

Although enrollment falls short of last year's official registration of 16,203 students, School Superintendent Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon said, "The downward trend is not a significant one." (Editor's note: The school population would continue to decrease, bottoming-out at approximately 7,900 in 1989-1990.)

BROWNWELL SEEKS AG'S ACTION AGAINST QUINCY BAY SEWAGE

Rep. Thomas Brownwell has requested the Attorney General's office to issue an official complaint against MDC pumping facilities in the Quincy area.

Brownwell noted that over the Labor Day weekend, "large quantities of sewage discharges" appeared on Quincy Bay beaches including Wollaston, Merrymount and Weymouth beaches. Although Brownwell found no evidence of raw sewage, he did say, "the rancid odor was very bad." He also noted a red tinge, like the red tide color in place along Wollaston Beach.

Immigration. The American dream. "Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free, the wretched refuse of your teeming shore. Send these, the homeless, tempest-tost to me, I lift my lamp beside the golden door!" Words written by Emma Lazarus and inscribed on the Statue of Liberty. Words not written to a particular people, but written to show the heart of America.

In our current political climate you would be hard pressed to find someone without an opinion on immigration.

But as with so many political issues we separate the policy from the person. We speak in generalities and not in individual stories. By focusing on policy it makes it easier to take the emotional, loving and welcoming spirit out of Lazarus' words.

"Next Year in Havana", a novel by Chanel Cleeton, is a story which speaks to the lives of people who leave the only homes they have ever known. Some by choice. Some by force.

What dire circumstances must exist to bring a person to risk not only their own life, but the lives of their children in order to leave?

This is the story of a wealthy Cuban family that flees to America after the Cuban revolution. A story of women who love their country in dangerous times. "We are silk and lace, and beneath them we are steel."

This story speaks to the heart of the exile as well as to those who were left behind.

Elisa Perez was a young woman in the late 1950's in Cuba. Her father was a wealthy and politically well connected man. She was commonly found on the society pages and spent her days by the pool and her nights in ball gowns. Until the Cuban revolution.

Marisol Ferrera was raised by her grandmother, Elisa, in Miami, Florida. It is the year 2017 and Elisa has just passed away. She tasks her granddaughter to bring her ashes back to Cuba. Marisol, as a journalist, is able to honor this request.

Marisol is invited to stay at the home of her grandmother's childhood friend and neighbor. Upon arrival Marisol begins to realize that her grandmother had more than one motive for sending her granddaughter back to Cuba. She begins to question if she really knew her grandmother at all.

A story written in two voices and in two generations we begin to understand the heartache of leaving your home and those you love and starting over. The heartache of never being able to go back. The desire of the exile when speaking of their birth home and the changes they desperately want to see in their lifetime. The hope when speaking of home when they imagine themselves back in Cuba, "next year in Havana"....

Those who left and have not been able to return have kept Cuba alive in their hearts. Elisa, in her stories to her grandchildren, tells tales of the Cuba she knew. Not Cuba as it exists today. Marisol identifies as Cuban. She grew up speaking Spanish, hearing her grandmother's stories, eating Cuban food and listening to Cuban music. While in Cuba she feels like a visitor in what she had always considered her home. She sees the daily struggles of the Cuban people. Struggles with their own government, but also with their feelings for those who left. Those who did not stay and fight for a better Cuba.

Yes, these characters are fictional, but what a great reminder of the fact that behind every political issue is a face. A story. The common desire we share as human beings for wanting to provide for our children and the desire for a place called home.

Children and adults, bring your imaginations into the Quincys' ancestral home and experience the life of families. Hear the volunteer tour guides explain how important it was to have the children help around the house.

This is on the original land where in 1635 Edmund Quincy I established his home in a wood full of game - not far from the fresh water of Butler Pond and Furnace Brook - 384 years ago. Stroll through the gardens that are beautifully kept by volunteers. The landscape portrays a historical record of importance and beauty, while the mansion's architecture offers a time capsule repertoire of changes wrought by three centuries of evolving taste.

What is today fondly known as the Dorothy Quincy Homestead is owned by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and operated by Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR) in cooperation with the non-profit The National Society of The Colonial Dames in The Commonwealth of Massachusetts (NSCDA-MA).

Ping Pong Meatballs With Shells

By MARIE

Here is a recipe that you will be able to prepare earlier in the day and finish off for dinner. It's made with small meatballs about the size of ping-pong balls that are baked in the oven instead of frying.

Pre-heat oven to 350 degrees; prepare a cookie sheet with parchment paper or slightly grease

Ingredients and Directions:

Meatballs

1 pound of beef (you can also use turkey or pork or any combination)

1 egg

¼ cup panko bread crumbs or seasoned bread crumbs

¼ cup parmesan cheese

1 teaspoon basil (or any favorite herb)

Mix all of the above together until combined well. Roll meat mixture into small meatballs about the size and shape of a ping-pong ball. Place on a prepared cookie sheet and bake at 350 degrees for 10 to 15 minutes. (They do not have to be fully cooked.)

While the meatballs are cooking in the oven, start to prepare the tomato sauce that the meatballs will simmer in.

Sauce

2 tablespoons olive oil

2 cloves garlic

1 or 2 tablespoon of chopped onion (if desired)

Salt and pepper to taste

1 28-ounce can of crushed tomatoes (I use kitchen ready) follow directions on can.

In a large sauce pan, sauté garlic in hot oil, add tomatoes, salt, pepper and basil, this creates a simple tomato sauce that goes well with meatballs. On low heat simmer and stir.

After meatballs are out of the oven, place in the tomato sauce, increase to medium heat and continue to simmer and stir for about 20 minutes. (This sauce can be made earlier in the day and set aside.)

For dinner, cook a ½ pound or 1 pound of shells depending on how many people you are feeding.

After the shells are drained place them back in the same pan.

When the sauce and meatballs are done, place shells in a bowl, ladle sauce over shells and top with meatballs.

Sprinkle with parmesan or Romano cheese.

Tuscan Tuna Salad

By SUSIE

Have no time to cook? Too hot outside? Want something packed with protein and healthy vegetables that will keep you satisfied?

Well, this Tuscan Tuna Salad recipe is the answer! You can add in any other vegetable that you like, such as cucumbers or red peppers. Just make a bit more of the dressing! Enjoy!

TUSCAN TUNA SALAD

INGREDIENTS

2 (16-ounce) cans cannellini beans, rinsed and drained (I use EDEN brand since they have no BPA in the lining of the can and are easier to digest)

4 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil

1 (12-ounce) can solid-pack white albacore tuna in water, drained and flaked (I like Wild Planet brand because they use low mercury tuna)

1/2 medium red onion, thinly sliced

1/4 cup chopped fresh basil

1 cup cherry tomatoes, cut in half

2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice

1 teaspoon sea salt

1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

Directions:

Combine the beans and oil in a large bowl and mix well. Add the tuna, onions, basil, sea salt, tomatoes, lemon juice and pepper; mix well.

Night Sweats: Causes, Remedies, Treatments

A Message From Ruth Jones, City Of Quincy Health Commissioner

By RUTH JONES
MSPH, BSN, RN,
BC, CP-FS

Night sweats, or excessive sweating during sleep, are common symptoms in both women and men. Many medical conditions and diseases can be the culprit. Night sweats refer to any excess sweating transpiring during the nighttime hours. However, be aware that if you keep your bedroom temperature unusually hot or you are sleeping in an excessive amount of clothes, you may sweat during your sleep, which would be considered normal. In order to differentiate night sweats that result from medical causes from those that occur because a person's surroundings are too warm, healthcare providers generally refer to actual night sweats as severe hot flashes occurring at night that can drench sleepwear and sheets, and which are not related to an overheated environment.

In one study consisting of 2267 patients visiting a primary care physician, 41% reported experiencing night sweats during the previous month, so the experience of excessive sweating at night is common. It is important to note that flushing, a warmth and redness of the face or trunk, also may be difficult to discern from true night sweats.

There are a multitude of causes that could result in night sweats. To ascertain what is triggering night sweats in a particular patient, a healthcare provider must obtain a detailed medical history and particular tests to decide if an underlying medical condition is responsible for the night sweats.

Depending upon the underlying cause of the night sweats, other symptoms may occur in connection with the sweating. For example:

- Certain infections or cancers
- Shaking and chills can sometimes occur if the underlying cause is a fever.
- Unexplained weight loss can occur if sweating is due to lymphoma.
- Night sweats due to the menopausal transition are commonly accompanied by other symptoms of menopause such as vaginal dryness, daytime hot flashes, and mood changes.
- Night sweats that occur as a side effect of medications can be accompanied by other medication side effects, depending upon the specific drug.
- Conditions that result in increased sweating in general, versus only night sweats, will result in increased sweating at other times of the day.

Common cause of night sweats may include:

- Perimenopause and Menopause - The hot flashes that accompany the menopausal transition can occur at night and cause sweating. This is a widespread cause of night sweats in perimenopausal women. It is significant to remember that hot flashes and other symptoms of the perimenopause can precede the actual menopause by several years.

• Hypoglycemia - Occasionally, low blood glucose levels or hypoglycemia can cause sweating. People with diabetes who are taking insulin or oral anti-diabetic medications may encounter hypoglycemia at night that is accompanied by sweating.

• Hormone disorders - Sweating or flushing can be observed with several hormone disorders, including pheochromocytoma, a type of adrenal gland tumor that overproduces hormones known as catecholamines, carcinoid syndrome an overproduction of certain hormones by tumors of the lung or gastrointestinal system, and hyperthyroidism an excessive level of thyroid hormones.

• Idiopathic hyperhidrosis - Idiopathic hyperhidrosis is a disorder in which the body chronically produces excessive sweat without any detectable medical cause.

• Infections - Typically, tuberculosis is the infection most frequently associated with night sweats. However, bacterial infections such as; endocarditis (inflammation of the heart valves), osteomyelitis (inflammation within the bones due to infection), abscesses (for example, boils, appendix, tonsils, perianal, peritonsillar, diverticulitis), and AIDS virus (HIV) infection can also be associated with night sweats.

• Cancers - Night sweats can be an early symptom of some cancers. The most common type of cancer associated with night sweats is lymphoma. However, those who have an undiagnosed cancer often have other symptoms as well, such as unexplained weight loss and fever.

• Antidepressants - Taking certain medications can lead to night sweats. All types of antidepressants including tricyclic antidepressants, selective serotonin reuptake inhibitors (SSRIs), and the newer agents, venlafaxine (Effexor) and bupropion (Wellbutrin) can cause night sweats as a side effect, with a span in incidence from 8% to 22% of those taking antidepressant drugs. Other psychiatric drugs have also been linked with night sweats.

• Other medications - Medicine taken to lower fever (antipyretics) such as aspirin and acetaminophen can sometimes lead to sweating. Other types of drugs can cause flushing, a redness of the skin, typically over the cheeks and neck, which may be misperceived as night sweats. Some of the countless drugs that can cause flushing include: niacin, tamoxifen, hydralazine, nitroglycerine and Viagra. Other drugs, including cortisone, prednisone, and prednisolone, may also be associated with flushing or night sweats.

• Neurologic conditions - Though uncommon, neurologic conditions may cause intensified sweating and possibly lead to night sweats including; autonomic dysreflexia, post-traumatic syringomyelia, stroke, and autonomic neuropathy.

Keep in mind, night sweats are usually a harmless annoyance; nevertheless, they are occasionally a sign of an underlying medical disorder and those experiencing unexplained night sweats should seek medical care. The treatment for night sweats depends upon the underlying cause.

Ruth Jones is the health commissioner for the City of Quincy.

Brookwood's 7th Annual Farm Dinner Sept 15th

By CATHY SMITH
Brookwood Community Farm

Hunger does not know seasons, but Brookwood Community Farm (BCF) does and uses the seasons to grow wonderfully nutritious produce. Think about where you find your fresh vegetables - grocery stores, farm stands, farmers markets, your garden, your neighbor or a local farm. For those who struggle to pay bills or find a job or a home, access to fresh local produce is often more difficult.

For many seasons, BCF has tried hard to connect people in Quincy and surrounding communities to fresh produce; improving access is our mission. Brookwood raises funds to support this mission at our 7th Annual Farm Dinner, Sunday, Sept. 15th and through our participation in The Ride for Food by Three Squares New England on Oct. 6th. In 2018 BCF donated fresh food valued at over $21,000.

Right here in Quincy, our fresh food donations go to the Germantown Food Pantry. Other food pantries include Milton, Canton and Roslindale and formerly Rosie's Place in Boston.

For those Quincy residents with farm memberships, a portion of each $50 membership supports our mission. We welcome more visits, membership and involvement.

The farm stand is open two times each week: Thursday 2 - 6:30 p.m. and Saturday 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at 11 Blue Hill River Rd., Canton.

Thank you to all who have ever taken the time to support Brookwood through your membership, volunteering, donations, or attendance at our events. Please consider attending this year's Farm Dinner on Sept. 15th at Prowse Farm. The menu features Brookwood produce cooked by local chefs, music by local artists and an eclectic silent auction. You can also support one of Team Brookwood's riders at the Ride for Food.

All funds raised at these events go directly to support Brookwood's mission to provide access to healthy food. Farm dinner ticket information and the link to donate to Team Brookwood can be found at our website: www.BrookwoodCommunityFarm.org.

applicant absent and voted unanimously to reject it.

Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy said he was opposed to O'Shea's proposal and had expected the board to vote it down because members have rejected previous requests to build multi-family homes in Residence A neighborhoods.

"I know the board has been very vigilant over the years - if it is Res. A, it's Res. A. This wasn't going to work," McCarthy said. "I'm pleased that the denial happened, and we can move on."

In other business Aug. 27, the Zoning Board of Appeals:

Allowed E Y Realty to withdraw without prejudice its proposal to convert the existing structure at 109 Standish Ave. into a three-family building.

Continued until Sept. 27 its hearing on Michael Grehan's plan to build five new townhouse units at 12 Miller St.

Approved Guo Lin Wu's request to convert the existing non-conforming single-family home at 179 Beale St. to a two-family home.

Continued until Sept. 10 Bradley Chasin's request

add an addition to 15 the Strand. Board members asked the applicant to reduce the height of the proposed addition by a half story.

Approved Vinicius Michael Silva's request to add a second story to the single-family home at 32 Hanna St.

Approved Chang Qin Zeng's request to renovate the front porches at 115-117 Safford St. and extend the landing 36 inches.

Continued until Sept. 10 its hearing on Stephen Niosi's request to build a 39-unit residential building at 29-31 and 35-39 Newcomb St.

"There is a presumption that whatever FERC does is right, and we have no authority to override the FERC decision," Mariano said. "What we can do is raise some issues around the coastal treatment and the air quality and issues like that. We can't directly go in and say, 'you can't go in and put a compressor station in there,' so all we can do is work around the edges to try and make this as unattractive a site as possible and that is what we're trying to do."

"We've criticized the FERC decision based on their own regulations - they have violated their own regulations on a couple points. One is the closeness to a waterway; this is in direct violation of what they recommend. We've identified a number of things we think they ignored. Unfortunately, they've been rejected at the federal level. Now, we're trying to create issues at the state level, which we hope forces the company to look at other sites - more economically easier sites to access."

The House has passed legislation to require the installation of an air-monitoring station in the Fore River Basin adjacent to the site of the proposed compressor station. Mariano expects the Senate will act quickly on the bill once it reconvenes from its summer recess.

"We got it through the House fairly quickly and then time ran out on the Senate side. We'll get it done though," he said.

In addition to requiring the installation of the air-monitoring station, the bill would also require state environmental regulators to account for background levels of emission when evaluating whether a proposed source's emissions violate acceptable standards.

The state has issued waterways and wetlands permits for the station, though those are being appealed. The state Office of Coastal Zone Management must also approve of the project, determining whether the plan complies with the federal Coastal Zone Management Act.

Mariano said he will testify against the project during the CZM review. The compressor station, he said, is too close to the waterway.

"We're preparing testimony for Coastal Zone Management. They have a review that's underway. We're trying to point out the issues around having this as close to a waterway as it is. We're trying to highlight those problems for them," Mariano said.

Why I Ride The Coast To The Cure

By ALEX CELLUCCI
Coast Rider and Committee Member

My name is Alex Cellucci and I ride.

I ride for my father, who not only has to endure the physically debilitating pain of spinal tumors and the emotional frustration of hearing loss, but worst of all each heart wrenching diagnosis of his three daughters and his granddaughter with NF2.

I ride for my oldest sister Stephanie, who was an avid cross-country runner before the crippling effects of her spinal and nerve tumors robbed her of the ability to ride. I ride for my younger sister Marissa, who not only had to face the everyday adversities of a teenager in high school, but also had to experience her first brain surgery and wake up with complete hearing loss on one side.

I ride for my 28-year-old self, who at 9 months pregnant heard the words, "the genetic testing confirms you do have neurofibromatosis type 2."

I ride for my mother, who has to sweep in and pick up the pieces with her love and strength every time NF2 comes in and drops a bomb on our family.

I ride for my brother Liam, because I know how much he loves us and the anxiety that NF2 causes an entire family has become a burden he has to bare.

I ride for my husband, and his always positive and hopeful attitude, even on the worst of our days.

Most of all I ride for my sweet 6-year-old Maible and hope that her fun-loving spirit never be broken by NF2, and that we find a cure before the effects of NF2 leave any lasting scars on her innocent body.

I ride because sometimes that's all I can do to feel like I am making a difference.

This year I am lucky enough to be riding my 7th Coast to the Cure. This year my body will allow me to ride, but I will not be riding alone. I will have my team beside me with their unwavering love and support. Their commitment in helping us fight for a cure is astounding. All of their hard work and training for this event has not gone unnoticed. I am over the moon with gratitude for each and every one of you. This year let's ride with hope in our hearts, a hope that the money we raise will fund a cure for NF!

School's Open - Drive Carefully Reminder From AAA

As the new school year begins, AAA Northeast reminds both motorists and families that extra caution is needed as children make their way to school by walking and riding in areas where they weren't seen over the summer.

The greatest risk to children isn't when they're riding the school bus; it's approaching or leaving them. Between 2008 and 2017, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) reports 264 school-age children were killed in school transportation-related crashes, primarily when they waited at bus stops or crossed streets before boarding or getting off school buses.

"Children can get caught up in the excitement of back to school time and might forget to look for cars even though motorists are required to yield and stop for school buses with activated lights," said Mark Schiel-drop, AAA Northeast Massachusetts spokesperson. "Drivers need to be aware—especially in school zones, near playgrounds and at bus stops—that kids might dart into streets."

Through its annual

School's Open - Drive Carefully campaign, AAA offers tips to drivers to keep children safe:

- Slow down. Speed limits in school zones are reduced for a reason. A pedestrian struck by a vehicle traveling at 25 mph is nearly two-thirds less likely to be killed compared to a pedestrian struck by a vehicle traveling just 10 mph faster.

- Come to a complete stop. Research shows more than one-third of drivers roll through stop signs in school zones or neighborhoods.

- Look for clues, such as AAA School Safety Patrollers, crossing guards, and school zone signs that indicate children are in the area.

- Keep your eyes moving. Scan between parked cars; look for shadows on the ground. Since children can be quick crossing roadways unexpectedly or emerging suddenly between parked cars, understand that taking your eyes off the road for just two seconds doubles your chances of colliding with another car or pedestrian.

On the other hand, parents and guardians should teach school-aged children to:

- Cross at corners, not in mid-block. Use crosswalks if they're available.

- Use your 'eagle' eyes: look left, right, then left again before crossing streets.

- Right on reds can be dangerous; watch for turning vehicles when crossing at corners.

- Eliminate electronics such as headphones and cellphones when crossing streets.

AAA Northeast reminds drivers that flashing yellow lights on a school bus means slow down because the bus is preparing to stop. Red flashing lights means stop, including cars in the opposite lane on undivided roads. In Massachusetts, the law requires drivers to stop at least 100 feet behind a school bus and stay stopped until the bus light stops flashing, the extended stop-arm is retracted and the bus begins to move.

"Safe driving habits are important year-round, but extra diligence is required when children are heading to and from school," Schiel-drop added.

AAA: Red Light Running Deaths Hit 10-Year High

More than two people are killed every day on U.S. roads by impatient and reckless drivers blowing through red lights, according to data analysis performed by the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety.

The most recent crash data available shows 939 people were killed in red light running crashes in 2017 -- a 10-year high and a 28 percent increase since 2012. With the number of red light running crashes on the rise, AAA calls for drivers to use caution when approaching signalized intersections, and for pedestrians and cyclists to stay alert when crossing the street.

According to the AAA Foundation:

- 28% of crash deaths that occur at signalized intersections are the result of a driver running through a red light.

- Per capita, Arizona has the highest rate of red light running fatalities while New Hampshire has the lowest rate.

- Nearly half (46%) of those killed in red light running crashes were passengers or people in other vehicles and more than 5% were pedestrians or cyclists. Just over 35% of those killed were the drivers who ran the red light.

"Drivers who decide to run a red light when they could have stopped safely are making a reckless choice that puts other road users in danger," said Mark Schiel-drop, AAA Northeast Massachusetts spokesperson. "The data shows that red light running continues to be a traffic safety challenge. All road safety stakeholders must work together to change behavior and identify effective countermeasures."

According to the AAA Foundation's latest Traffic Safety Culture Index, 85% of drivers view red light running as very dangerous, yet nearly one in three say they blew through a red light within the past 30 days when they could have stopped safely. More than 2 in 5 drivers also say it is unlikely they'll be stopped by police for running a red light. Nevertheless, it's against the law and if a driver is involved in a deadly crash, it could send them to jail.

While enforcement is the best way to get drivers to comply with any law, it is impossible for police to be at every intersection. The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety (IIHS) found that when properly implemented, red light cameras reduced the fatal red light running crash rate of large cities by 21% and the rate of all types of fatal crashes at signalized intersections by 14%.

"Deaths caused by red light running are on the rise," said Jessica Cicchino, IIHS Vice President for Research. "Cameras increase the odds that violators will get caught, and well-publicized camera programs discourage would-be violators from taking those odds. Camera enforcement is a proven way to reduce red light running and save lives."

Proper implementation of red light cameras helps to ensure drivers' safety and trust in the systems. When using red light camera programs, local governments should incorporate best practices, such as:

- Using the camera program as part of a comprehensive traffic safety strategy, including engineering and education.

- Only implementing programs on roadways with a demonstrated pattern of violations or crashes.

- Notifying drivers that cameras are being used (signage and other methods).

- Calibrating cameras regularly.

- Only operating cameras under the direct supervision of law enforcement personnel.

- Evaluating the programs on a periodic basis to ensure safety benefits are being realized.

Changes in driver behavior are also critical to reducing the number of red light running crashes on U.S. roads. To prevent red light crashes, AAA recommends that drivers:

- Prepare to Stop: Lift your foot off the accelerator and "cover the brake" when preparing to enter any intersection by positioning your right foot just above the brake pedal, without touching it.

- Use Good Judgment: Monitor "stale" green lights, those that have been green a long time as you've approached the intersection. They are more likely to turn yellow as you arrive at the intersection.

- Tap the Brake: Tap your brakes a couple of times before fully applying them to slow down. This will catch the attention of drivers who may be inattentive or distracted behind you.

- Drive Defensively: Before you enter an intersection after the light has turned green for you, take a second after the light changes and look both ways before proceeding.

Pedestrians and cyclists should also stay safe when traveling near intersections. AAA recommends:

- Wait: Give yourself a few seconds to make sure all cars have come to a complete stop before moving through the intersection.

- Stay Alert and Listen: Don't take chances and don't wear headphones. Watch what is going on and give your full attention to the environment around you.

- Be Visible: Stay in well-lit areas, especially when crossing the street.

- Make Eye Contact: Look at drivers in stopped vehicles to ensure they see you before crossing the road in front of them.

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty: Paying Income Taxes On Social Security Benefits

By RUSSELL GLOOR

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I understand that after I reach full retirement age, I no longer have a limit on how much I earn. I retired one year early (65), and am now 76, but I am still being taxed on a portion of my SS benefits. I am not working and making extra money. However, my wife is still working, and I get two small annuities per month. But when I file income tax I am told we made enough for me to be taxed on a portion of my Social Security benefit. I even checked to see if filing married but separate returns would help and it was not as good as joint returns. So maybe you can explain this to me. Signed: Taxpaying Senior

Dear Taxpaying Senior: I'm afraid you're speaking of two different things. You are correct that once you reach your full retirement age there is no longer a limit on how much you can earn from working before your monthly Social Security benefit is reduced. But that is something totally different from paying income tax on your Social Security benefits.

Social Security's "earnings limit" looks only at your earnings from employment (or self-employment) to decide if they should take back some of your benefits before you reach your full retirement age. However, whether or not your Social Security benefits are taxable income is determined by your "combined income," which includes your adjusted gross income as reported to the IRS, plus any non-taxable interest you may have had, plus 50% of your total Social Security benefits for the tax year. This is often referred to as your "modified adjusted gross income" or "MAGI" and it's how the IRS determines if, or how much, of your Social Security benefit is taxable income. As a couple filing your income taxes as "married - filing jointly" if your MAGI is over $32,000 then up to 50% of your annual Social Security benefit amount is taxable, and if your MAGI is over $44,000 then up to 85% of your Social Security income becomes taxable. Note that the combined income levels are different, and lower, when you file your taxes individually.

The "earnings limit" is a rule imposed by Social Security to recover some benefits paid if the limit is exceeded due to your earnings from working. Taxation of Social Security benefits is done by the IRS (not Social Security) and it's the IRS who determines if your Social Security benefits will add to your income tax burden. And while the Social Security earnings limit goes away once you reach your full retirement age, there is no such relief from the IRS at any age when it comes to paying income tax on your Social Security benefits.

New Paramedic Education, Emergency Medical Technician Programs At QC

Quincy College with campuses in Quincy and Plymouth and Comprehensive Medical Teaching Institute, LLC of Weymouth announce a collaborative partnership to offer for-credit, certificate programs in Paramedic Education and Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) at Quincy College's Quincy Campus.

The EMT Program will start Sept. 10. The Paramedic Education Program will start January 2020.

The biggest differences between paramedics and EMTs are the training and the scope of practice (what they are allowed to do). Basic EMTs usually receive 120-150 hours of training, while paramedics get anywhere from 1,200 hours to 1,800 hours of training.

"Quincy College is pleased to work with Comprehensive Medical Teaching Institute, LLC to build a comprehensive emergency medical program for South Shore medical professionals at Quincy College," said college President Michael Bellotti. "A unique, for-credit program, Quincy College is uniquely positioned to educate the next generation of emergency medical professionals, supporting workforce development across the South Shore, addressing an increasing need for qualified professionals from entry level to advanced studies.

"Additionally, this program allows many of our current students pursuing related fields of study like Criminal Justice or Nursing to build upon their skill sets, expanding their opportunity for future careers," Bellotti said.

CMTI Chief Operations Officer Keith Wilson said: "CMTI is committed to providing world class medical instruction to both civilians and medical professionals alike. In partnering with Quincy College, we are able to offer college credit in a hands-on, dynamic learning environment for all of our students, ensuring individualized attention. The CMTI/Tufts Medical Center Consortium for Paramedic Education Paramedic Program will be offered at Quincy College's Quincy campus, starting January 2020. This course will include all didactic, laboratory and clinical internship requirements followed by a field internship. Financial Aid may be applicable for this new program at Quincy College.

Completion time for the program including all clinical experiences and internships is 18 to 20 months. This is a certificate program that offers 27 college credits. This program is suitable for medical professionals or first responders who are already certified as EMT-B and are looking to enhance their skills, expand their career opportunity, or advance in their field.

The 6-credit EMT Program is applicable not only for civilians but for established emergency personnel like firefighters, law enforcement, and other professionals looking to expand their practical, on-the-job knowledge in a college environment. This program is the entry-level program for those interested in emergency medical career and will be offered at Quincy College's Quincy campus, starting Sept. 10.

Upon successful completion of the program students will be eligible to sit for the National Registry of Emergency Medical Technicians cognitive and psychomotor exams. This is a 6 credit, certificate program.

Barry J. Welch Field Dedicated To Longtime Rec Leader

By TOM GORMAN

For more than five decades, Quincy Recreation Department Director Barry Welch was a familiar face on the city's playfields. Although he recently retired and won't be physically involved with the recreation programs, a field now bears Welch's name that will be a constant reminder of his dedication to the generations of children that he served.

The Varsity Soccer Field on Merrymount Parkway adjacent to Veterans' Memorial Stadium was renamed the Barry J. Welch Varsity Field. Welch's family, residents, and local officials gathered to dedicate the field and honor him on Aug. 24 for his 55 year tenure with the recreation department — 37 years as director.

"Today we dedicate a field to Barry Welch, but, it's really a lifetime achievement award," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "How many people today stay with an organization for 55 years? It's not the years, it's what happened in those years... the dedication he showed each and every day."

Welch began his career with the recreation department ment in 1964 as a playground instructor. He served in the Coast Guard and was stationed in Hull where he met his wife-to-be, Marilyn. Welch then attended Northeastern University where he earned a degree in recreation.

He was appointed assistant recreation director in 1975. In 1982, Welch was appointed as director of the department, a position he held until his retirement this February.

Koch noted that as park director before becoming mayor, he worked with Welch. He said Welch worked tirelessly night and day, overseeing and pioneering recreation programs.

"When you talk about recreation, Barry comes to mind, it's synonymous," said Koch.

The mayor noted that Welch lost both his parents

Presidents Host AWHHS In Football Opener Friday

By BRUCE MARQUIS

The Quincy High School Presidents football team kicks off its 2019 season at home this Friday at 7 p.m. against the Bishops of Archbishop High School at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. This will be a non-league game.

Coming off a 3-8 campaign, Coach Kevin Carey's 11 is anxious to continue its improvement and advance to the official playoffs in 2019. Having moved down to the Fisher Division of the Patriot League, Quincy has replaced Braintree, Milton, Duxbury, Hingham, Plymouth North, Whitman-Hanson and Silver Lake with Archbishop Williams; at Norwell (Sept. 13); Durfee (Sept. 20); at Pembroke (Oct. 4); Plymouth South (Oct. 11); at Hanover (Oct. 18); and Scituate (Oct. 25). Those seven contests are followed by 3 weeks of "extra" games that either play-off games or just added ones to fill out the season.

The grand game of the season, as always, will be against the archrival North Quincy Red Raiders on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 28. The Presidents will be aiming to end their three-year losing streak to their cross-city brethren. The Scituate and Hanover games also promise to be barnburners.

Leading the blue and white of Quincy onto the gridiron will be senior quad-captains Mike Cugini, Thomas Le, Derek Little and Shane Murphy. Le, a dominant runner and line-backer, is, according to his coach, "the total package." He excels in the classroom (19th in the class of 2020); in team leadership on and off the field; and, according to other sources, the 5'11" 220-pound battering ram and deadly tackler is being heavily recruited by several area colleges.

Cugini is a defensive stalwart in the backfield; Little is an accomplished receiver; and Murphy is an all-purpose offensive back and solid linebacker.

The strength of this year's Quincy squad is expected to be the offensive backfield, featuring the running of Le and junior Isaiah Steinberg, and the passing and scrambling of junior quarterback Amarion Robinson and Murphy. The two have been competing for the signal-caller position throughout the pre-season and either will be effective. It is probably fair to say that Steinberg will be "Mr. Outside" and Le will be "Mr. Inside."

It is anticipated that the Presidents will implement a spread offense to utilize overall team speed and reduce the pressure on a relatively inexperienced and undersized offensive line. The only returning starter on the interior is senior Kevin Ferrent, but there are several other talented players waiting in the wings to become starters.

Other seniors to be called upon include Zack Demore, Stuart Dozier, Tyler Duncan, Kevin Gallant, Eddie Lei, Eric Mayo, Mathew McGinnis, Milo Santagelo, Lukas Schaaf, Michael Scibilio and Devante Williams. Dozier and Williams promise to provide veteran leadership on defense.

Yearning to move into regular varsity positions are juniors Elise Andrews, Michael Coote, David Dennis, Devin Desmond, James Devarie, Akai Fitzpatrick,

Red Raiders Kick Off Football Season Sept. 13 Vs. S-L

By BRUCE MARQUIS

The North Quincy High School Red Raiders open their 2019 season next Friday, Sept. 13, hosting the Lakers of Silver Lake High School at 7 p.m. at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. All its games this year will be played at the city stadium rather than at the more "limited" venue in terms of seating capacity of Creedon Field next to the high school.

Coming off a somewhat disappointing 5-6 season, Coach Ryan Craig's 11 is anxious to continue its improvement and improve their results in the playoffs. The Raiders will be playing all the same teams as in the 2018 campaign: Silver Lake; at Westwood (Sept. 20); Archbishop Williams (Sept. 27); Scituate (Oct. 4); Pembroke (Saturday, Oct. 12 at 1 p.m.); at Plymouth South (Oct. 18); and at Hanover (Oct. 25). Those seven contests are followed by 3 weeks of "extra" games that either playoff games or just added ones to fill out the season.

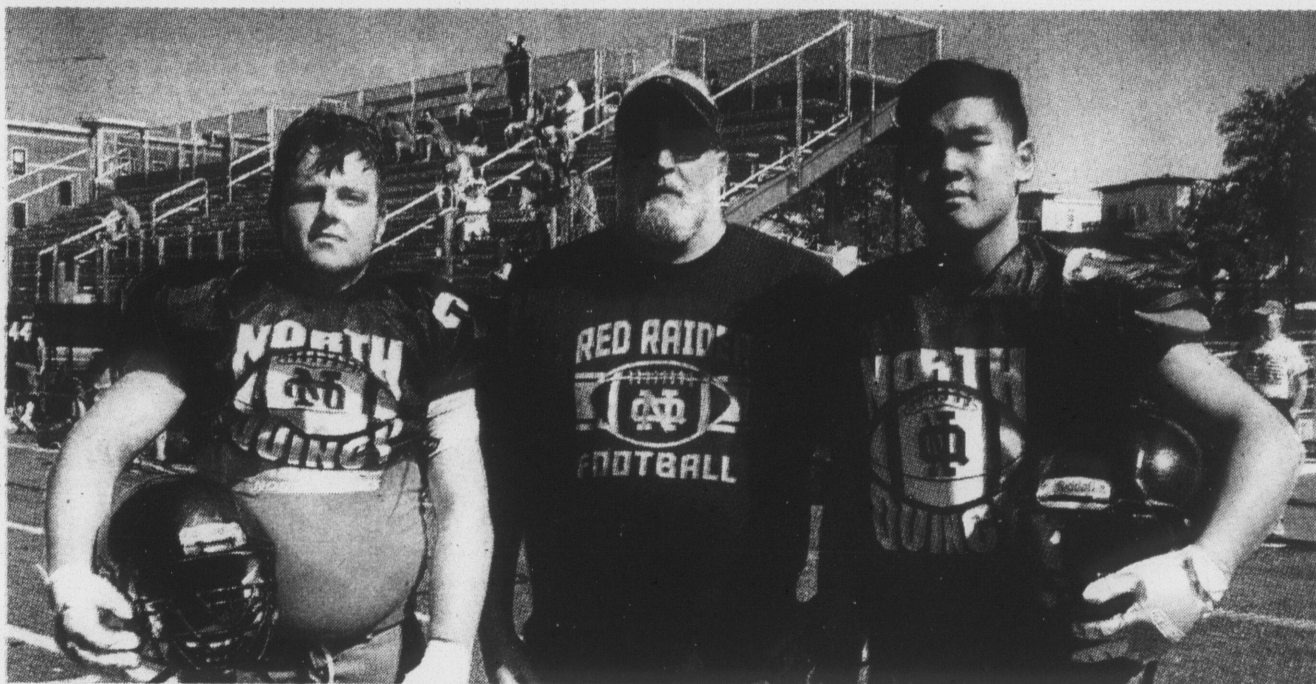

The likely ultimate game of the season, however, as always, will be against the archival Quincy Presidents on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 28. The Raiders will be aiming to extend their three-year winning streak against their cross-city brethren. The Westwood, Scituate and Hanover games also promise to be hard-fought slugfests.

Providing on and off the field leadership will be senior co-captains Mike Levine and Jackson Zhau.

Zhau will be serving his second year in that capacity and Levine is considered by many to be heart and soul of the Raiders. They are likely to be guards on offense. On defense, Levine will in the line again, having led in total tackles with 67 in 2019. Zhau will most likely be an outside linebacker again. He excelled throughout last season despite missing several games due to injury, and his squad benefitted from his superb performance on Thanksgiving.

They will be joined by other seniors: tight end and defensive back Raymond Chau; lineman Kevin Dinh; lineman Michael Dooley; defensive end Michael Gordon; quarterback and defensive back Andrew Gott; defensive end and running back Josh Jackson; lineman Jaman Liang and back Shane O'Connell. It is hoped that junior linebacker Matt Selter will be able to return from injury.

The strength of this year's edition of The Raiders is expected to be their ground game and their defense. Returning seven starters on defense, led by seniors Levine, Zhau, Josh Jackson, and Gordon, along with juniors safety Tyler Le (tied Josh Jackson for second in tackles last year with 59), Liam Hines and Jamal Maximilien. They are expected to be stingy and display their ball-hawking skills on pass plays.

Others likely to be starting defense are O'Connell at cornerback, Sean Jackson at linebacker, Matt Scanlon, Brandon Baker and Ray Bego all at defensive tackle, Brendan Hines at defensive back.

The running game will be led by Liam Hines, O'Connell, Josh Jackson, and sophomores Matt Craig and Hunter McIsaac. Handing off to them and throwing necessary passes will be either senior Andrew Gott or sophomore Cooper Hanson, who starred last season on the strong Freshman squad.

Receivers will include tight ends Raymond Chau and brothers Declan Geary, a junior, his sophomore brother Colm, and wideouts Le, Maximilian, Brendan Hines, Sean Jackson, and junior Peter Do.

With only 56 players signed up for the pre-season workouts North Quincy must count on very strong sophomore and junior classes joining with a small but strong group of seniors. Future squads will benefit from last year's infusion of 25 freshmen players.

Second year head coach Ryan Craig has assembled an impressive group of assistants, most of whom are returning from last year, but with the important addition of legendary player and coach Ken McPhee. Playing guard on the 1966 Super Bowl champion Raiders and coaching the 1992 North Quincy team to the same achievement, McPhee is considered by many to exemplify the spirit and success of Red Raider football.

Other coaching assistants include defensive coordinator Tom Walsh; offensive coordinator Mark Dhooze; assistant head coach Kevin Bowes; Mike Hanson; Kyle McKay; Pat Dooley;

Tom Carter and Peter Chrisom, and Martin Dunham. Carter and Chrisom coach the freshman team; Hanson and McKay coach the junior varsity. Dunham oversees scouting and video; he provides vital statistical information for these stories.

Craig began turning the program around during his first year, helping to instill a renewed pride among his players. This was partly due to involving many of the alumni of the program as coaches, mentors and overall supporters. He said he is "optimistic" about the season ahead and Craig believes "that every game is winnable." All the games will be competitive, but he said he feels that Scituate, Hanover and Quincy are likely to be the toughest. It is clear the coach will have his squad ready.

Kevin Gomez, William Hibbard, Bobby Jaehnig, Matthew Kelly, Muhammed Khan, Ryan LaRoche, Rene Marquez, Ciro Moura, and Sean Williams. Desmond, Devarie, Jaehnig, Kelly and LaRoche all made significant contributions during the 2018 slate of games, and their continued development will be a key ingredient of this year's outcomes.

With more than 110 players signed up for pre-season workouts, no one can claim a lack of interest in and commitment to football among Granite City youth. This also presents Carey's coaching staff a stiff challenge to engage them all and "coach them up." About half of the players attended the annual Gridiron Camp held this year at Hanover High School to help them prepare for the grueling pre-season workouts and the eleven-game campaign.

Returning as offensive coordinator is Briel Parker and head coach Carey will again shoulder the honors as defensive coordinator. Other assistants are special teams coach Mark Randall, Greg Sommers, Joe Wilder, Greg Caswell, Dan Guarante, Dave McPherson, John Orlando, Kirk Prescott and Richie Turpin. Chuck Hanaford in the freshman head coach. The fact that six of the staff are also teachers at the school, and Carey is the Dean of the 9th grade freshman class, a clear benefit to the coach and his players of the future.

Entering his 22nd consecutive year on the Quincy football staff, second year head coach Kevin Carey wants to improve his team's record of wins and losses enough to qualify for the formal playoffs, not just the "extra" 3 games. Last year's edition increased its win total by 50 percent (from 2 wins to 3). A similar improvement this year could result in a 4 or even 5 wins going into the playoff round.

Carey said he is excited about the positive attitudes and talent on his roster and this may very well be the time for Quincy High School to return to its former heights in league play after a few down years. It seems that the Presidents will be ready, so bring on the season!

37,000th Book Printed At Registry Of Deeds

Celebrating a significant milestone at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, Register William O'Donnell announces the Registry recently completed printing its 37,000th book of recorded land documents.

"The printing of our 37,000th book, which includes land documents such as deeds, homesteads, mortgages and mortgage discharges, is a significant event in the life of the Registry and a testament to the volume of work completed each and every business day here at the Registry of Deeds," O'Donnell said. "The printing of Book 37,000 links us to the Registry's rich history that dates back to 1793.

"While the printing of books is ongoing, it is important to note the Registry continues to embrace and utilize cutting edge technologies allowing us to record land documents instantaneously. Documents are scanned and available for viewing within 24 business hours of recording at www.norfolkdeeds.org."

"Our computer systems are backed up on a nightly and weekly basis. This redundancy allows the Registry to maintain a permanent record of all land document recordings in the event of a disaster affecting our building at 649 High St., Dedham. Additionally, the Registry also microfilms all recorded land documents and ships the microfilm off-site to a secure location where it can be retrieved in the event of a catastrophe," O'Donnell added.

Residents and those with an interest in Norfolk County property are encouraged to visit the Registry of Deeds. Users of the Registry have options to view land documents by whichever means they are comfortable. Either hard copy via books or on-line by one of our many computer workstations available to the public or from the convenience of their home or work computer.

"The core mission of the Registry of Deeds is to record land documents in a safe, secure and accessible manner," O'Donnell said. "Part of this charge is to serve as a depository for over 8 million land documents recorded from the Registry's beginning in 1793, right up to the present day. While we have embraced the latest technologies to improve efficiencies, the printing of books allows us to maintain a permanent hard copy record of each recorded land document on-site."

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds is located at 649 High St. in Dedham. The Registry is a resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information. All land record research information can be found on the Registry's website www.norfolkdeeds.org.

Norfolk Register Of Deeds Speaker At Assessors Association Meeting Sept. 17

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William O'Donnell will be a guest speaker at the Norfolk-Suffolk Assessors Association.

The meeting will be held at Lombardo's in Randolph on Tuesday, Sept. 17th. Registration begins at 9 a.m. with programing beginning at 9:30 a.m. O'Donnell has been invited to speak to the members at 11 a.m.

"The partnership that county registries have with the cities and towns' assessing departments is a critically important one when it comes to sharing data," O'Donnell said. "On a routine basis, usually at the end of the month, registries will provide a host of the latest land related document information to assessing departments such as copies of deeds, death certificates, tax takings, site plans and trust amendments. The assessing department will then use the information to update their files."

One of the issues O'Donnell will talk about is the increase role that information technology plays in the Registry of Deeds operation.

"Today, our customers, whether it is a Norfolk County resident or a municipal agency, are looking to get their information as quickly and as easily as possible on a 24/7 basis," O'Donnell said. "The information could be viewed in a number of ways: by a tablet, by a cell phone or by a work or home computer."

O'Donnell will also talk about the renovation, repairs and improvements made this year to the registry's historic building.

"The updating may seem minimal or pedestrian to some, but when you have a 116-year-old building things like new interior doors, floors, ceilings, new counters in the recording area along with other improvements to the research wing were needed to handle the wear and tear caused by customer traffic throughout the years," O'Donnell said.

"I am very much looking forward to speaking to the Norfolk-Suffolk County Assessors Association. Hopefully, what we saw and learned this year as a registry of deeds will make our partnership with the assessors an even stronger one," O'Donnell added.

On Friday, Aug. 23, at approximately 2:12 a.m., Captain Goyette was on patrol in the North Quincy section of the city due to increased criminal activity in the area. As he was driving on Holbrook Road, he saw a flashlight go on briefly in a driveway, so he parked his unmarked cruiser at the intersection of Safford Street and Holbrook Road to further investigate.

Moments later, he saw a male suspect shine the flashlight intermittently down two driveways on Small Street. The suspect appeared to have heard the running engine of the captain's cruiser so he approached the cruiser and shined his flashlight directly into the tinted windshield.

Upon seeing that the cruiser was occupied, the suspect quickly walked away. Captain Goyette then exited his cruiser to encounter the suspect.

Officer O'Connor arrived on scene to assist and after determining the identity of the suspect, it was learned that he had two warrants for his arrest. As the officers approached the suspect to handcuff him, the suspect took off running down Safford Street to West Squantum Street, ignoring multiple commands to stop running. The suspect quickly became fatigued at the intersection of West Squantum Street and Farrington Street and stopped running.

At this point, the suspect was strongly advised numerous times to show his hands and get on the ground, but he did not comply. The officers then brought the suspect to the ground and after a brief struggle, he was handcuffed and searched, which revealed a syringe in his pocket. There were also two small baggies containing residue of marijuana which were turned in for destruction. The suspect also had some junk mail from 100 West Squantum St. in his possession.

The suspect, a 30 year-old Weymouth resident, was charged with knowingly resisting arrest along with the two warrants. Nice Work!

MYSTERY SHOPPERS?

The lure of getting paid to shop or dine for free is attractive and even better if you get paid! Most company require that you complete a survey or an evaluation after visiting the establishment. While some mystery shopping opportunities are legitimate, be wary because many are scams that will actually cost you money.

If "mystery shopping" appeals to you, do some homework before signing up. The first step is to search out information about the company online with the words, "review," "complaint" or "scam" to read what others are saying.

The purpose of working for one of these groups is to make money – not lose it. If the company asks you to pay up front first, end contact with them. No real job opportunity, including mystery shopping, involves paying for the job. Don't pay companies for "certifications," directories or job "guarantees," all of which are usually worthless. Companies asking you to pay for such things are likely scammers.

– If you are asked to deposit checks into your bank account and send money back to pay for courses, fees or anything else, again this is a scam. Most likely, you will be out any money that you send.

– Never wire money or buy gift cards for a mystery shopping assignment or any job opportunity. Those are sure signs of a scam. If you're looking for legitimate mystery shopping jobs, check out the Mystery Shopping Providers Association for a database of authentic companies. Just make sure to take the two preventive steps; check the company out online and never send them money!

Back In The Day . . . Reflections Of A Changing City

By DR. ALLAN YACUBIAN

Quincy is again going through many changes. If there is space, apartments are built. If there is no space, existing buildings are torn down and more apartments and condos are built. As these changes go on, we adapt to them.

In no way is this an argument for or against what is happening, but rather it reminds us that change is difficult to accept and that after time passes, people will not remember what was there.

The Bunker Hill Monument, commemorating the Revolution, was built with Quincy granite transported on carts riding on rails made of granite and later, steel rails made in Quincy. From that time, Quincy became a city of industry innovation and progress.

There was a time when neighbors would walk to work carrying lunch pails and brown paper bags, leaving their cars parked in the driveway. There was the Pneumatic Scale Company, maker of the Cadillac packaging equipment. Cereals, chips, cookies, nuts and anything else to be packaged, was. Pneumatic Scale was located where the North Quincy Super Stop & Shop is located.

Boston Gear Works, known worldwide for the quality of their gears and sprockets, along with Tubular Rivet and Stud Company, also a world leader, were both located in Quincy. Zildjian Cymbal, located on Farrington Street, is recognized as the foremost cymbal manufacturer, using a secret metal formula from the 1600s. From great orchestras to Gene Krupa and Buddy Rich, Zildjian Cymbals are everywhere.

Quincy Mutual Fire and Life Insurance company, Wollaston Alloys, Hancock Paint, Norfolk Paint, Fore River Shipyard, Proctor & Gamble, White Brothers Milk Company and S.H. Couch Company, a leader in intercom electronics, were all great contributors to Quincy history. The Grossman family, with their chain of building supply stores, were a precursor to the big-box stores such as Home Depot and Lowe's. The Grossmans continue to be generous benefactors to Quincy.

Howard Johnson's and Dunkin' Donuts, both with international reputations, have their origins in Quincy.

Bill Rosenberg owned the Industrial Luncheon Kitchen, located on the marsh behind the North Quincy fire station. They brought sandwiches and drinks to the workplace and sold them. In the early 1950s, Bill opened the first Dunkin' Donuts on the Southern Artery in Quincy.

Howard Johnson lived in Wollaston and owned the drugstore and soda fountain at the Wollaston train station. This humble beginning would lead to an international chain of restaurants and hotels. Mr. Johnson saw an orange tile seen at Pemberton Roofing on Newport Avenue, where Marshall's and Job Lot are located. He then met with Mr. Norman Pemberton and obtained the exclusive rights to that tile that then became the HoJo's logo. In later years, Brigham Pemberton, Norman's son, ran the roofing company. He was not only responsible for all of the Howard Johnson restaurants and hotels roofing, Pemberton did most of the municipal work at City Hall, the Thomas Crane Public Library, the Church of the Presidents and all the other historic buildings.

After the MBTA Red Line arrived in Quincy, smokestack industry was not encouraged. The brown baggers are no long gone walking to work. Now avoiding the traffic and finding a place to park are the new games. We are reminded of "Back In The Day!"

Quincy, plus several precincts each in Holbrook and Weymouth — since winning a 1991 special election. He also served on the Quincy School Committee for a dozen years.

Mariano, age 72, will next be up for re-election in November 2020. In a recent interview, Mariano said he intends to run again, though a formal announcement won't likely be made until early next year.

"Probably not until February or March of next year, but right now I feel good," Mariano responded when asked when he would announce his re-election bid. "I'm still having fun. I enjoy the job very, very much."

Mariano said he has been able to work with Mayor Thomas Koch on the redevelopment of Quincy Center and secured funding for the construction of the $244 million Fore River Bridge that opened in 2017. He said more work remains to be done in his district, including a possible project at the Fore River Shipyard.

"I've been able to be a help to the mayor in the development of the downtown. I got the Fore River Bridge done. I've gotten a lot of things done, but there is still a lot more to do," Mariano said.

"I would like to be involved in whatever project is going to come out of the Fore River Shipyard, which has been in my neighborhood. I think as the economy improves, the options for doing something down the shipyard get better. Now we have the bridge issues ironed out, so the next step would be to start having some discussions about the yard. There has got to be more productive ways to use the land than storing cars."

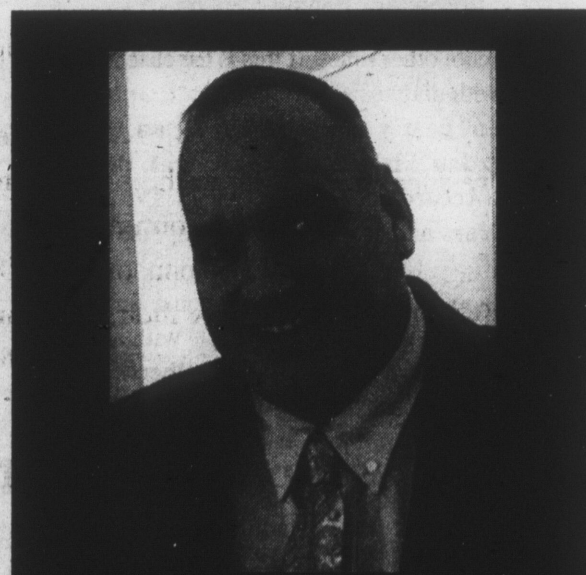

Mariano has served as the majority leader in the House of Representatives since 2011. Mariano said he would be interested in serving as speaker, but has no plans to challenge the current speaker, Robert DeLeo, a Winthrop Democrat who has held the post since January 2009.

"Absolutely," Mariano said when asked if he was interested in serving as speaker of the House.

"We'll see how long Bob stays. I have my own timetable in mind, and I haven't talked to the speaker about it. I would never run against him, so it's pretty much his decision as to when he goes."

Beach Church Sunday

Beach Church resumes Sunday, Sept. 8th at 8 a.m. on Wollaston Beach between the yacht clubs.

The brief 30 minute service is timed to enable folks who regularly attend services at their own congregations to still be able to do so while allowing an opportunity for those who do not regularly go to church to experience worship in a beach setting.

The services are sponsored by Christ Church Mobile Ministries, a ministry that brings the church to those who do not or cannot attend regular traditional Church.

Rev. Martha Swanson is the founder and director and is an ordained Congregational Minister. The services will continue each Sunday morning at 8 a.m. through Sept. 29th.

Radiator Flushing, 30K-Mile Service, Vinyl Roofs, Escape Tools

Ask John Paul: AAA New England's Car Doctor

I have a Buick Cascada convertible and I really like the car; it handles well and is just the right size for me. I purchased it used and it has been great with one exception. Sometimes when I get out of the car the radio won't shut off. The car is off but the radio continues to play. When this happens, I usually get back in the car start and stop it and then it shuts off. The used car dealer and my local shop just tells me that sometime these things happen in new cars. Is this the only answer?

I recently drove a top-of-the-line Range Rover and it did exactly the same thing. Sometimes everything would shut off, sometimes not. In the case of your Cascada (and I agree it is a nice car) there is a fix. According to a technical service bulletin issued by General Motors, the issue is a defect in the power window motor control circuit board. The body control computer needs to see a signal to know that the door is open to cancel what is referred to a retained accessory power. The fix is to replace the window regulator.

I have a 2016 Ram Promaster Van that I use for my flooring business. It has been a great van, but recently I took the truck in for routine service and an oil change. The service was quite expensive, and the service department also told me I needed an air filter. I told them replace it if its dirty. I was a little shocked that it only took 10-15 minutes to change it, but the filter was $106 making to cost of the air filter about $130. When I called other dealers, the prices were very inconsistent. Did I get taken advantage of or is this the correct price?

The $106 is the price I show for the filter in AllData, the on-line data base that I use, and the labor is correct - you didn't get taken. If you did the job yourself, you could have saved a little money but even online the average filter price is $70-$80 for a factory Chrysler filter.

Recently the battery in my car died; my next-door neighbor tried to jump start my car. The jumpstart didn't work, so I ended up buying a new battery. The car started up and ran fine, but now the speedometer is not working. Any ideas or information on how to fix this problem?

I have seen this problem before and providing nothing was damaged when the battery was jumpstarted it can be fixed quite easily. Similar to a computer being re-booted the car's problems can be remedied in the same fashion. Have someone disconnect the battery cables from the battery and hold them together for about a minute, then re-connect the battery. This procedure will sometimes exorcise the electrical gremlins. The other issue is sometimes the speedometer needle will spin completely around and get stuck. Removing the speedometer and resetting the needle generally fixes the problem.

I have a 15-year old car with 189,000 miles on it that takes me back and forth to school and the train, all short distance trips. My question is: does the radiator need to be flushed and if so, how often and what about a tune-up?

All cars are somewhat different, but as a general rule engine coolant lasts three to five years. The problem is, coolant doesn't just lose its ability to keep the engine from freezing or overheating, it also can become quite acidic. When coolant/antifreeze becomes acidic it can cause some serious and expensive damage to the engine. What you may find is it could be time for a radiator due to the overall age of the car. Tune-up rules can vary quite a bit and aren't as relevant as they once were. Today, spark plugs last anywhere from 15,000 to 100,000 miles. Filters can last 30,000 miles or more. Considering how you use your car and its age and mileage, check the vital fluids on a regular basis, and build up a relationship with your repair shop so they can help you maintain and repair your car as necessary.

I drive an older Ford Excursion that I love for a variety of reasons, including a third-row seating, sizeable rear storage, four-wheel drive and towing capacity. This huge truck solves many of my family's current needs; however, one drawback is the horrible fuel economy. With plenty of family pick up and drop offs I feel that some days I can watch the gas gauge move. Even though gas prices are pretty good is there anything I can do to improve mileage? Online I have seen discussion about fuel additives that can increase mileage by 30-50 percent, but I've also read how these additives can destroy an engine. What is your take on these, and do you have any recommendations beyond proper tire inflation and driving the speed limit to increase my gas mileage?

Over the years I have tested all sorts of fuel saving devices and additives and found none that worked as advertised. I would also have the vehicle checked out just to make sure there isn't a brake dragging or some other mechanical issue, impacting fuel economy. My advice is to maintain your car, drive the speed limit and plan driving as economically as possible. Easy on the gas and brake is still the best advice. With most drivers, if they look carefully at their driving habits, they can easily eliminate 10-20 miles off weekly mileage totals. Although not a huge savings, over the course of a year the savings could run around $150-$200 per year.

I recently brought my 2016 Toyota Camry in for its 30,000-mile service. The cost appeared reasonable and the dealership even gave me a 10 percent first responder discount, but it is never as easy as it seems. The service assistant came back with several issues that the mechanic thought should be attended to. The recommendations didn't seem unreasonable but still pricey. I told the service person I would think it over. The car is only three years old and is driven sensibly. Is this extra work necessary?

The 30,000-mile service if it included a recommendation of replacing the engine and cabin air filters that is perfectly acceptable. If the dealer is recommending fluid flushes at that mileage I would ask why. All of the fluids should be checked, but unless they show signs of contamination, I don't see any reason to have them changed.

I recently inherited my grandpa's 1993 Mercury with a half vinyl roof. The car has low mileage and is in great shape except the roof. The car spent its life in Phoenix and the roof is all cracked and ugly. I have looked online but haven't found a replacement solution. Any thoughts?

If it were me, I would have the vinyl roof removed and the roof repainted to match the or even contrast the color of the car. Vinyl/carriage roofs are an acquired taste and to me just don't look good on any car made in the past 60 years.

I have a Nissan Rogue and it is four years old and has 61,000 miles on it. The problem is the air conditioner. I can turn it on and sometimes the air coming out of the vents is cold and sometimes it is warm. I took it to the dealer, showed them the problem and they set up an appointment. When I came back in, the air conditioner was working fine. The service manager came out and handed me my keys and said they couldn't fix the problem if it wasn't broken. Right now, I have the same problem about once per week. What do I do?

The Nissan Rogue has had its share of air conditioner issues. Some include updates to controller and the control unit. Just like nearly every part of a vehicle today, after checking the basics, the system should be checked for fault codes. It seems as if the air door actuator or motor may be failing. This would cause the air temperature to be warm sometimes and cool other times. If this is the case is may set a code to help with diagnosis.

In this age of nearly everyone buying an SUV, I'm considering a sedan. I have looked at several: the Toyota Camry, Honda Accord and Subaru Legacy. What do you think of these cars and is there something else I should be looking at?

They are all good choices but two additional cars I would look at. The Nissan Altima is now available with all-wheel-drive and that sets it apart from some of the others. The other car is the Mazda 6, this is in my opinion one of the best kept secrets on the road. In this price range I don't think any car handles better, ride as comfortable and as a bonus the fuel economy during my road test averaged 30 miles per gallon.

JOHN PAUL
AAA's Car Doctor

I saw you on television talking about vehicle escape tools and it got me wondering what other items should I keep in my car in case of emergencies?

In my own car I keep a pocket multi-tool (screwdriver, knife, pliers) rechargeable flashlight that doubles as a cell-phone charger, portable air compressor, rechargeable 12-volt jump-pack and an emergency warning triangle. I keep all of this in a small gym bag for easy access. With these few tools I can usually handle the most common reasons why AAA rescues people (flat tires and dead batteries).

I recently saw a Nissan Skyline at a car show, and it was getting plenty of reactions from passers-by and I didn't get it. What makes this car so special?

The once only sold in Japan Skyline GT-R became known as Godzilla and was a hit with video gamers and was also featured in the Fast and Furious movies. The car is powered by a potent turbo-charged six-cylinder engine, has great handling all while having a very stealthy look. Now that these cars have become 25 years old, they can be imported a bit more easily. The Skyline GT-R are not cheap cars. The models that I have seen for sale run between $20,000-$50,000.

Now that we had some hot and humid weather, I have started to notice that my two-year old Buick has a stinky smell coming from the air conditioner. When I complained to the dealer, their suggestion was to shut off the air conditioner and let the fan run for a few minutes to dry out the system. Do you have any better ideas?

General Motors did come out with a kit to clean and coat the air conditioner evaporator. This coating helps prevent the mold buildup that is causing the odor. I have also seen some modifications that are similar to what the service department have told you, only it happens automatically. When you shut the car off the cabin fan runs for a while to dry out evaporator.

I have a new Jeep Wrangler and the connection for the rear window defroster came off. I asked the dealer how it was going to be repaired and they told me they were just gluing it back on. I paid nearly $50,000 for this Jeep and the idea a broken part is glued on bothers me. Should I complain?

The dealer if they followed the direction of Chrysler recommends only using the Frost-Fighter 2000 repair kit. This kit includes a high-performance epoxy that should provide a permanent solution to your Jeeps dangling wires.

Tara Nguyen Presents At Symbolic Interaction Conference

Eastern Connecticut State University student Tara Nguyen of Quincy recently presented and organized a session at the 2019 annual Society for the Study of Symbolic Interaction (SSSI) conference in New York City.

Nguyen, a member of the Class of 2021, along with her faculty-mentor Nicolas Simon organized a session titled "The Next Generation: Outstanding Symbolic Interactionist Undergraduate Papers," at the SSSI Conference. The Session highlighted undergraduate research on the topic of symbolic interactionism - a theory that examines how humans impose their subjective meanings on objects, events and behaviors.

To organize the session, Simon and Nguyen reached out to faculty members and students from colleges and universities in New York, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Massachusetts. They also reviewed student applications and abstracts to determine who to invite to the session. The SSSI primarily features research by Ph.D. students and professors, so Simon and Nguyen's session was a rare opportunity for undergraduate students to participate in the conference.

Nguyen, a sociology major, was among the undergraduate presenters. Her presentation was titled "Communities Unite: An Autoethnography of the Resistance to Gentrification in Chinatown, Boston." Her research focused on social inequalities within the Asian-American community through the lens of intersectionality and critical race theory-which considered how various social identities overlap in the context of race, law and power. She addressed the issue of gentrification in Boston's Chinatown and discussed what activists are doing to fight it.

Nguyen commented on her experience at the conference. "The experience was intense, but very rewarding. I was glad to help give other undergraduate students the opportunity to present their research at a conference filled with Ph.D. students and professors."

Nguyen plans on continuing to research other topics related to social inequalities in the Asian American community and pursue a Ph.D. program in either education or social policy.

Children's Jewish Activity Program Announced

A special collaborative partnership of South Shore synagogues and Jewish organizations recently announced the launch of Shalom Children Activity Program (SCAP). SCAP is for families with children up to age 8 who are looking for fun, social, engaging activities infused by Jewish values and experiences, whether it's about taking care of our planet, going on an archaeological "dig," being kind to animals, helping others, and more.

In today's world family life can be hectic and busy. SCAP tries to make "quality family time" as easy as possible. For parents looking for some kind of Jewish connection, SCAP's programs and events are a way to experience, create, and celebrate together while meeting other families living in your area. No-cost programs take place throughout the year from South Boston to the South Shore, and participants are welcome to come to one or all.

SCAP's opening event, entitled "Hey World - Happy Birthday 5780!" will be at Blue Hills Trailside Museum, 1904 Canton Ave., Milton on Sunday, Sept. 22, 1:15-3:15 p.m. It is for families with children up to 8 years old (siblings welcome), and is free, but registration is required. Celebrate the beauty of nature with other families with young children as you experience a hands-on Presentation of Animal Habitats led by a trained naturalist, go on a nature scavenger hunt, and eat apples and honey to mark the earth's 5780th birthday.

This event has a maximum of 50 children, with priority by date of registration. Check in from 1:15-1:40 p.m. in front of the Trailside Museum building. The program begins promptly at 1:45 p.m. Registration for this event is at: <http://shalomcap.com/?event=hey-world-happy-birthday-5780>. For questions or concerns, contact: shalomchildrenactivityprogram@gmail.com or visit our website at www.shalomcap.com.

SCAP will offer ten once-a-month programs from September 2019 to June 2020. Its partners include Cong. Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills, Milton; Temple Beth David of the South Shore, Canton; Temple Beth Shalom, Hull; Cong. Sha'aray Shalom, Hingham; B'nai Tikvah, Canton; Temple B'nai Shalom, Braintree; and JCC of Greater Boston. The Shalom Children Activity Program is supported in part by a grant by CJP's South Area Planning Committee.

station in North Weymouth and a new bridge to Long Island

Koch introduced his request to appropriate the $200,000 to the city solicitor's office for those purposes at Tuesday night's council meeting.

"I ask for these funds in order to remain current on billing as we enter a litigation-intensive stage in each matter," City Solicitor Jim Timmins wrote in a request for the funds.

Tuesday night's meeting took place after The Sun went to press for the week.

Spectra Energy-Enbridge, through subsidiary Algonquin Gas, has proposed building the 7,700-horsepower compressor station in North Weymouth on a parcel of land near the Fore River Bridge. Officials and residents from Quincy, Weymouth and other communities are actively working to oppose that plan, citing concerns over public health and safety.

Timmins said Quincy will be involved in two appeals concerning the proposed compressor station. One is an appeal in federal court under the federal Clean Air Act and the second is an appeal in state court of the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection's administrative approval of the project earlier this year.

Boston Mayor Marty

Walsh unveiled plans to rebuild the Long Island Bridge – a three-year project with an estimated cost of $92 million – in January 2018. The bridge would connect Moon Island to Long Island, allowing Boston to open a recovery campus on the latter. Quincy officials were quick to oppose the plan after Walsh's announcement, citing the impact the bridge would have on traffic in Squantum and North Quincy. The Quincy City Council in October 2018 approved a $250,000 appropriation Koch sought to fund bridge litigation and related legal and engineering work.

The Long Island Bridge situation now involves multiple legal appeals, Timmins wrote.

Quincy, he noted, was recently on the favorable end decision in Suffolk Superior Court that will allow its case against to go forward. That case entails Quincy's claim that the Massachusetts Environmental Policy Act review process – in which Boston was given an approval needed to build the bridge – was deficient because Boston disclosed neither its plans for Long Island nor the condition of the piers that would support the bridge.

"This opens the door to a so-called 'alternatives analysis' which allows us to make the case for ferry service out to the island," Timmins said.

The two men, both Dorchester residents, were taken to Boston Medical Center. Their names have not been released.

Sgt. Karyn Barkas on Tuesday said the shooting remained under investigation and no suspects have identified.

Police previously said the shooting did not appear to be random.

Revere Man Charged With North Quincy Shooting

By SCOTT JACKSON

A 29-year-old Revere man was held on $25,000 cash bail following his arraignment on charges stemming from a July shooting at a North Quincy park.

Hau Huynh was charged with armed assault to murder and discharging a firearm within 500 feet of a dwelling in connection with the July 6 shooting. A not guilty plea was entered on Huynh's behalf during his Aug. 29 arraignment in Quincy District Court and he was ordered held on $25,000 cash bail.

Huynh is due back in court on Sept. 27.

Quincy police on Tuesday said Huynh was arrested in Revere and thanked detectives with the State Police violent fugitive apprehension unit for their assistance in the arrest.

Police were called to Welcome Young Park, located on Sagamore Street in North Quincy, just before 4 p.m. on July 6 on a report of shots fired. A subsequent caller told police a male party had been shot in the leg.

The victim was taken to Boston Medical Center with what police called non-life-threatening injuries.

Gas Prices Down One Cent

Gasoline prices in Massachusetts are down one cent this week, according to AAA Northeast.

AAA's Sept. 3rd survey of prices in Massachusetts finds self-serve, regular unleaded averaging $2.59 per gallon. The Massachusetts price is two cents higher than the national average for regular unleaded of $2.57. A year ago at this time, the average price in Massachusetts was 25 cents higher at $2.84.

"As an east coast storm, Hurricane Dorian is not threatening major oil and gas infrastructure so its impact is localized to its path along the east coast," said Mary Maguire, director of Public and Legislative Affairs. "For New England and the rest of the country, demand, which remains high, is chipping away at supply, but not at a high enough rate to increase gas prices."

Find the most up-to-date local gas prices by visiting AAA.com/FuelFinder.

Venkatrao Jupudi of North Quincy will walk one of the four designated distances along the historic Boston Marathon course this September in the Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk presented by Hyundai, which raises the most money of any single day walk in the country.

Jupudi will join 9,000 expected participants in the annual event, which takes place Sunday, Sept. 22. Money raised from the Jimmy Fund Walk will support adult and pediatric patient care and cancer research at the nation's premier cancer center, Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

The event has raised more than $135 million over 30 years. The Boston Athletic Association has supported the event since 1989, and Hyundai has been the presenting sponsor since 2002.

"The Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk presented by Hyundai gives participants the opportunity to personally support breakthroughs in cancer care and research at the renowned Dana-Farber Cancer Institute," said Zack Blackburn, director of the Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk. "Every step taken in walking and fundraising in our 30-plus year history is a step forward in the journey to conquer cancer."

There are four different distance options. Participants can choose from any of the below four distances along the historic Boston Marathon course:

All distance options conclude at the Copley Square Finish Line where participants receive a commemorative 2019 Jimmy Fund Walk medal and celebrate with teammates and volunteers. As walkers cross the finish line, they will be cheered on by volunteers and fellow walkers. There will be inspiring speakers, games, music, food, and other fun activities.

All walkers must raise a minimum of $325, except for walkers 12-years-old and younger whose fundraising minimum is $125. Pacesetters are extraordinary fundraisers who raise $1,500 or more, or $500 or more for those 12-years-old and younger. There is also a Virtual Walker option for those unable to attend the event on September 22, who still want to support the cause.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)

It might not be wise to pursue goals involving others, unless you can stop impulsively rejecting new ideas. Either open your mind or wait until next week, when this "ornery" mood passes.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)

It's a good time for the Bovine to be creative and practical for yourself and your surroundings. Shop wisely, not impulsively, and keep your Bull's eye focused on quality, not quantity.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20)

You should feel more confident about moving ahead with plans that had to be delayed by an unexpected turn of events. Also, family matters might need more time than first anticipated.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22)

Be considerate of others as you move into a new area in your professional life. Take time to meet people and discuss mutual goals. The more you get to know each other, the better.

LEO (July 23 to August 22)

Creating a fuss could get your ideas noticed quickly. But it would be best to present your case, and then wait for a reaction to follow in due course, rather than try to force it to happen.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22)

Unkept promises might cause plans to go awry this week. You can either grumble about people "letting you down" or find a way to make the best of it and move on. The choice is yours.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22)

Putting off making a commitment early in the week could be a good move. Best to act when you know you're making an informed decision. Expect more facts to emerge by the week's end.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21)

A recent act of kindness on your part could take on special meaning this week. Also, look for signs of upcoming changes in both your personal and professional relationships.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21)

Many of the tougher communication barriers between you and others in the workplace or at home could begin breaking down this week. Expect some surprises to emerge.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19)

Your "tough love" attitude toward someone you care for could be misunderstood. Try to be less judgmental and show more consideration in the way you relate to that person.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18)

An unexpected workplace challenge could be daunting. But take what you know (and you know more than you realize) and apply it to the problem, and you should see positive results.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20)

Recent relationship changes for both single and paired Pisces continue to influence much of your week. Keep your focus on developing the positive aspects as you move along.

BORN THIS WEEK:

You set your goals with assurance and influence others to follow suit. You would be an excellent philosopher and teacher.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD — Disney is having problems with its recent acquisition of 20th Century Fox (for $71 billion). It's had to contend with the failure of "Dark Phoenix" ($200 million cost/$252 million gross); "Stuber," with Dave Bautista and Kumail Nanjiani, which disappointed with just a $31 million gross against a $16 million cost. "The Art of Racing in the Rain" also disappointed in its opening weekend with an $8 million gross against a $20 million cost, despite "This Is Us" star Milo Ventimiglia, Amanda Seyfried and Kevin Costner, as the voice of Milo's dog. Disney has pushed back release dates in an effort to pump up the volume on upcoming movies such as Brad Pitt's sci-fi film "Ad Astra" (due in theaters Sept. 20) and the next "X-Men" release, "New Mutants," with a totally unknown cast (coming April 3).

Martin Lawrence, last seen in "The Beach Bum," with Matthew McConaughey, is returning to the scene of the crime of "Bad Boys" (1995) and "Bad Boys II" (2003) to co-star with Will Smith and Vanessa Hudgens in the sequel, "Bad Boys for Life," opening Jan. 17. This has been a comeback year for Lawrence as he fought back from health and legal problems. "Friday Night Lights" star Kyle Chandler will play an American astronaut in George Clooney's untitled upcoming film, which he's directing and starring in for Netflix. The Nov. 1 release of "Terminator: Dark Fate" reunites Arnold Schwarzenegger, Linda Hamilton and Edward Furlong (as John Connor) for the first time since "Terminator 2." Furlong was 14 and "T2" was his first film. He's now 42.

Had several inquiries about 1950-60s cowboy star Robert Fuller. He began with bit parts in such big films as "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" (1953), with Marilyn Monroe; "Calamity Jane" (1953), with Doris Day; "The Ten Commandments" (1956), with Charlton Heston; and "Spartacus" (1960), with Kirk Douglas, to name just a few. Fuller went on to star as Jess in the TV series "Laramie" (1959-63) for 124 episodes, and "Wagon Train" (1959-65) for 60 episodes. He's best remembered as Dr. Kelly Brackett in "Emergency!" (1972-78) for 125 episodes. Fuller's last TV appearances were in four episodes of "Walker, Texas Ranger" from 1997-2001 and in "JAG." Now 86, he still appears occasionally at autograph signing events around the country.

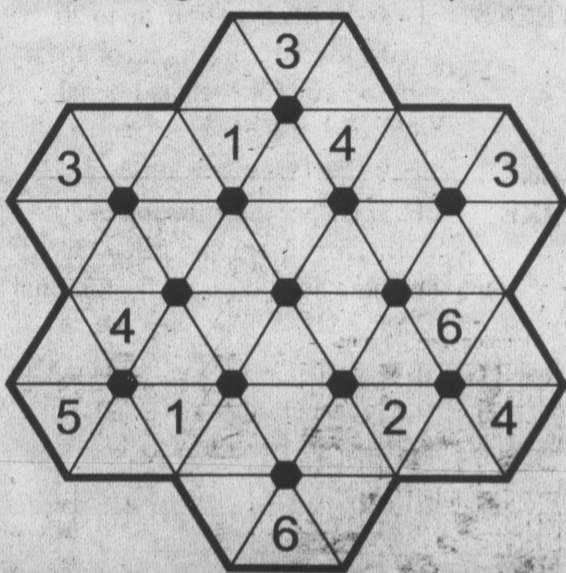

In May, "Saturday Night Live's" Colin Jost gave Scarlett Johansson a $40,000 engagement ring. Scarlett was wed to Ryan Reynolds from 2008-11 and to French adman Romain Dauriac, with whom she had a daughter, from 2014-17. She was a superhero in "Captain Marvel" and "Avengers: Endgame." They must be getting hitched soon, because she's already on Facebook as Scarlett Jost. He's 37 and she's 34, but is he strong enough to take on "Black Widow" (due May 1)?

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

'Blue John' Stone — Prices for antiques and collectibles are determined by many things that change with time — age, availability, condition, decorative value, fame of maker, artist or past owner, and even who is bidding and if there is a bidding war. Most of these things change with time, so rare Beanie Babies that cost hundreds of dollars for the few years they were in demand are sold today in a dump display for a few dollars. In the early 18th century, an attractive new stone was found in Treack Cliff Cavern near Derbyshire, England. It was a rare form of the mineral fluorite with bands of purplish-blue or yellow. It came to be called "Blue John." Matthew Boulton, a famous manufacturer in the 1700s, made many urns and other decorative objects using Blue John. The stone became a symbol of British art and was wanted by the elite. Recently, a new vein of Blue John was found, the fifteenth known, and new jewelry and objects are being made. A pair of antique Blue John and rock crystal obelisks recently auctioned for $2,176.

Q: At an antiques show in Pennsylvania, I saw a small quilt that was labeled a "privy bag." Of course I know what a privy is, but I've never heard of a fancy bag used to hold toilet paper in an outhouse. I have a bet with my husband that it is dealer's joke term.

A: You lose. There are references online dating back to 2010 for books and exhibits in Pennsylvania that feature quilted privy bags made to hold toilet paper. Some examples were at a recent show and one was priced $995. There are other kinds, some embroidered, some from fancy fabric and some just reusable cloth food sacks. The quilted ones have almost all been reported from the Lancaster, Pennsylvania, area. Privy toilet paper often was pages of the old Sears and Roebuck catalog, or squares of newsprint that were stored on a large nail. A decorative holder was crocheted in the 1920s-'30s from directions in some sewing magazines. A full, round, colorful crocheted skirt was made to fit a small doll. The legs of the doll were stuffed into the cardboard center and the skirt covered the paper. It was kept near the seating area. A few outhouses left in the United States today are in camping and hiking areas. The parks furnish a portable biodegradable kit that is carried out of the park at the end of the hike.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was British politician John Sweeney who made the following sage observation: "How can a society that exists on instant mashed potatoes, packaged cake mixes, frozen dinners and instant cameras teach patience to its young?"

* Golfers beware: Don't chew on the tees. One golfer who was in the habit of gnawing while he played overdosed on pesticides after playing 36 holes in one day.

* The longest word in the English language that can be typed using only one hand is "stewardesses."

* It's been reported that the last words of 19-century American author, essayist, biographer and historian Washington Irving were, "Well, I must arrange my pillows for another night. When will this end?"

* Famed actor Gary Cooper was offered the role of Rhett Butler in the film adaptation of Margaret Mitchell's novel "Gone With the Wind," but he turned down the part. He said he believed the movie would be "the biggest flop in Hollywood history." The film went on to win 10 Academy Awards, including one for Best Actor, which was taken home by Clark Gable, who took the part that Cooper refused.

* If you know you have coronary issues, beware of extreme temperatures. Those who study such things say that you're more likely to have a heart attack on a particularly hot or a particularly cold day.

* Records show that in England in 1552, William Shakespeare's father had to pay a fine for littering.

Thought for the Day: "You will die. You will not live forever. Nor will any man nor any thing. Nothing is immortal. But only to us is it given to know that we must die. And that is a great gift: the gift of selfhood." — Ursula K. LeGuin

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* Mirrors make a room feel larger, because they reflect space, essentially doubling the visual area. But for maximum impact, experts say to hang your mirror on the wall adjacent to your window, not across from it.

* Lunchbox season is here, finally. If you have an issue with odors remaining in your plastic food containers, here's a fix from B.P. in Alabama: "Fill container with hot water, and add a teaspoon of baking soda. This should remove smells. Let sit overnight if necessary."

* Here's a way to remove stickers, especially ones that don't tear off. Rub labels with straight white vinegar or soak a paper napkin with vinegar and lay it over the label. Let it sit for 10 minutes, then remove. You should be able to rub the adhesive right off. Reapply if necessary.

* Whether you recycle because of global warming, landfill overload or environmental issues, the planet thanks you. But remember that recycling is only one part of going green. "Reduce" and "re-use" are just as important. Choose products with less packaging. Have small appliances fixed instead of automatically replacing them. And keep recycling.

* Clean your coffeemaker this way: Fill your coffee-pot with equal parts water and vinegar. Add to machine and run as normal. Halfway through the cycle, turn the pot off and let the heated mixture sit for an hour or more. Complete the cycle, and run another pot or two of plain water through to rinse.

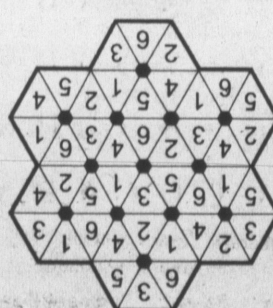

* If you kids have gone wild with new school supplies, here's a tip from A.M. in Indiana to erase crayon marks from painted walls: "Make a paste of equal parts baking soda and water, and apply to the area. Then let it dry and wipe away." This works best on a white or very light wall, as dark colors may lose some color. Also, wipe gently, as baking soda is a mild abrasive.

Barry J. Welch Field Dedicated To Longtime Rec Leader

as a young child. After he graduated from North Quincy High, his brother moved away and lost contact with him.

"He had some mentors, but Barry is a self-made guy," said Koch. "I have so much admiration for him... his service to his city, his love of family, his passion and dedication."

Koch said an old saying, "If you find a job you love, you never worked a day in your life," seems appropriate to sum up Welch's tenure.

"I suggest you never worked a day in your life," said Koch. "I say that respectfully."

Park and Recreation Commission member and school committee member Paul Bregoli related his lifelong friendship of Welch, since their days as students at North Quincy High School. He noted Welch's family seated in the audience and the crowd of officials and residents in attendance at the ceremony.

"The support he has in front of him right now speaks to his legacy," said Bregoli.

He said that the city was fortunate to have Welch overseeing the recreation department - a person that was "dedicated, motivated, innovative, knowledgeable and loyal."

"Taking over a department that was always a good one, he has left the Quincy Recreation Department as one, if not the best in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts," said Bregoli.

He noted an old saying, "Always leave something better than you found it."

"Barry has done that," said Bregoli. "He has provided the parents of Quincy and their children with a department with wide range of activities including the inception of sports camps - that was his idea - and sporting and boating programs."

Quincy's commissioner of natural resources, David Murphy, said he was a product of Quincy recreation.

"I was the ultimate rec rat, the first one in the gym and the last one to leave," said Murphy. "The summer program was something I looked forward to everyday of my childhood. It had a tremendous impact on my life."

Looking at Welch, Murphy said "I am proud to call him a not only a colleague, but a friend."

With his family, colleagues, and residents looking on, Welch expressed appreciation for the honor of naming the field in his name.

He also gave a nod to his predecessors, former recreation directors.

"I hope I've been a good steward to those who preceded me," said Welch. "They left a foundation for us to build on. This park and recreation department was built on granite."

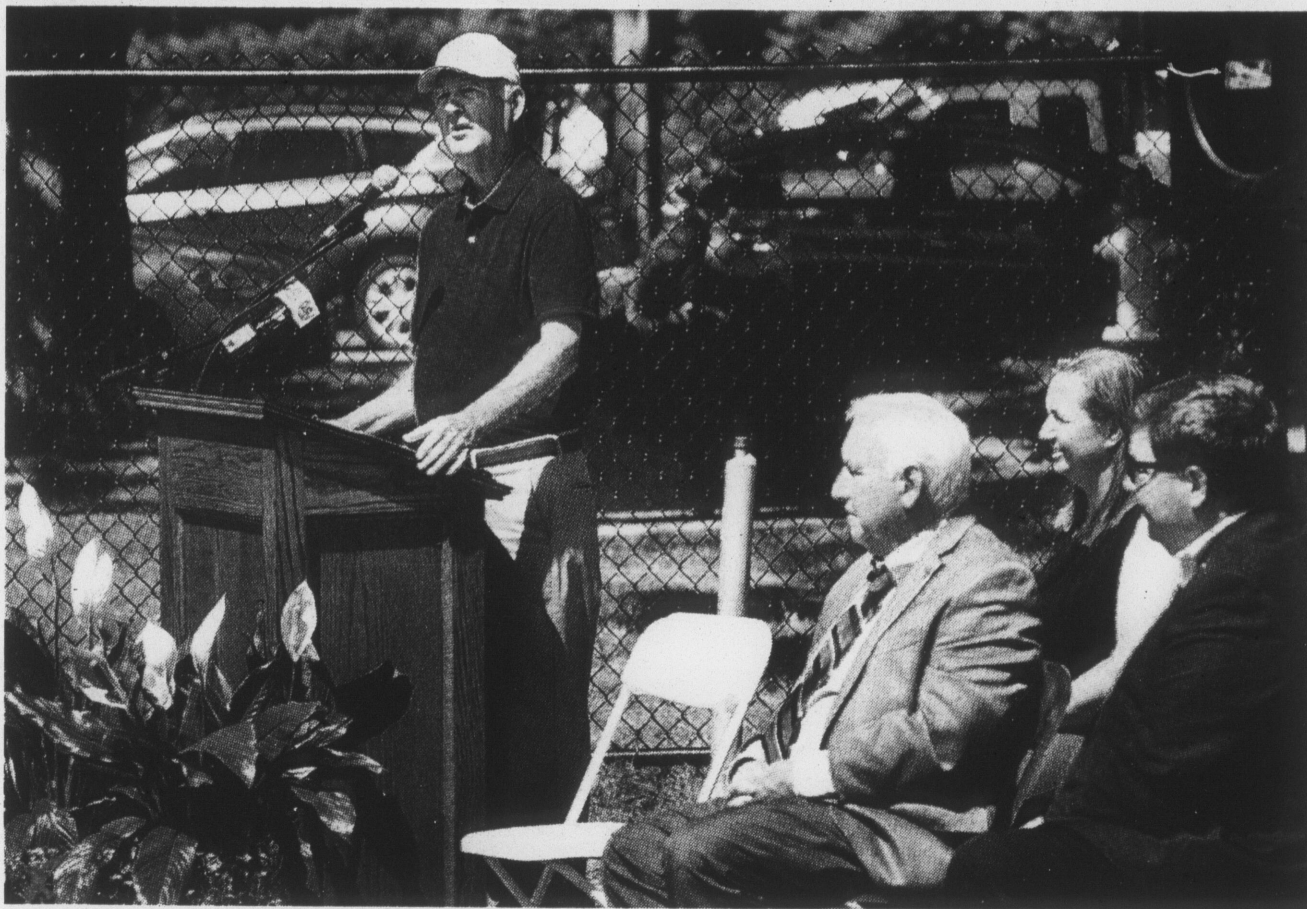

Welch said his staff makes the recreation program.

"You can have all the best facilities, the finest equipment, and well-designed programs, but they are nothing without qualified leadership," he said.

Welch pointed to the Merrymount Park area that features Adams Field, Veterans' Memorial Stadium, Pageant Field, Mitchell-McCoy Softball Field, the Collins Rest-a-While Playground, Fenno Street basketball courts, the Korean War Memorial, and the Adams Walk.

He noted that his department's handicapped program and the sailing program won national awards.

Welch voiced appreciation to his successor, Michelle Hanly, a 28-year veteran of the recreation department.

BARRY WELCH addresses the dedication ceremony of the Varsity Soccer Field in his name as Park and Recreation and School Committee Member Paul Bregoli, Recreation Director Michelle Hanly and Mayor Tom Koch look on.

BARRY WELCH'S family applauds during the dedication ceremony.

"I have the greatest regard for her as a professional in the field of recreation," he said. "I have absolutely no regrets leaving the program in her capable hands. The city and the department will be well served."

Welch thanked the parents for "loaning us your children."

"I thank the residents of Quincy who supported our activities all these years," he said. "It's been a great ride."

Welch was joined by his family as he unveiled the large sign dedicating the field in his name.

A celebration followed the ceremony at Pageant Field that included a reunion of former recreation employees.

Welch isn't disappearing entirely. He plans to continue his work on the city's Flag Day parade and will be around to help with other activities.

BARRY WELCH and Mayor Thomas Koch walk the newly dedicated Barry J. Welch Varsity Field.

MAYOR THOMAS KOCH shares a light moment with Barry Welch as park and recreation committee and school committee member Paul Bregoli looks on.

Mariano: State Could Be Leader In Wind Power

center for wind all the from Maine to the New York and New Jersey coast.

"We made some changes in the budget to allow for a bid that we think is going to attract an awful lot of people who want to be here in Massachusetts to develop our wind turbine industry. It's something we're looking forward to."

Doing so, Mariano said, would benefit the Bay State's economy and help it become energy self-sufficient.

"It's going to go a long way to, one, helping the economy in Massachusetts, but also, more than that, it's going to make us energy self-sufficient. We have one of the best prevailing wind farms off the coast of New Bedford and Fall River in the world. I think it is ranked in the 95th percentile out of 100," Mariano said. "We can get an awful lot of energy from wind if we just attack it surgically."

The technology behind wind power has also improved, Mariano explained; today's turbines generate more electricity than older ones.

"It's getting easier and easier because the turbines are getting bigger and bigger," he said. "When Cape Cod Wind first went down there, they were talking about 2.6 megawatts. Now, the turbines are 9 megawatts, so you see there is a significant increase. You need less turbines - or the same amount of turbines can generate five times the amount of energy."

"It really is something we should build our future on and I think we recognize that and we're trying to become the first in the nation to have a soup-to-nuts organization where we can produce the turbines, we can produce the ships that can install the windmills and we have the grid capability to distribute the power."

"It's a major overhaul of our system but it is going to be well worth it in the long run."

The continental shelf off the South Coast extends far enough away from land that the turbines can be installed nearly out of site, and further away from recreational boaters.

"The continental shelf goes way out off the coast of New Bedford and Fall River, so it is flat so you can put these windmills out so far that...you can barely see them on the horizon from shore and that, I think, is what's fascinating," Mariano said.

"You don't get the issue of, 'it's an eyesore.' You don't get any interference with pleasure craft, offshore boaters, and people crashing into them. It's far enough away that they there a non-issue."

The Legislature, Mariano said, previously passed a law allowing the governor to go out to bid for 800 megawatts of offshore wind power. New legislation would double that amount.

"The governor controls the bid process, but we allow the amount that he can purchase from these power companies," Mariano said. "We allowed 800 megawatts to go out for bid, and we're talking about doing more than that in another bid, so he would have about 1,600 megawatts, which is enough to do most of New Bedford and Fall River. It's that significant."

"Pretty soon the Cape and all those places are going to get their power from the wind."

Sheriff's Office Work Crew Assists Wollaston Recreation Facility

Norfolk County Sheriff Jerry McDermott assisted the City of Quincy by providing an inmate work crew to complete labor and landscaping at the Wollaston Recreational Facility.

"We received a request and we were happy to help. These partnerships are a win-win for our communities who are able to complete projects they otherwise may not have the budget for, as well as provide an opportunity for workers to give back to our municipalities through public service," Sheriff McDermott said.

Work crews are available to local communities, non-profits and charitable organizations by contacting Assistant Deputy Superintendent Gary DeIorio at the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office at 781-751-3533 or by visiting the website at www.norfolksheriff.com/ community-service-work-program.

Under the supervision of Norfolk County Sheriff's Outreach Officers, inmates regularly travel throughout the county to assist with general labor, landscaping, painting, trash pickup and cleanup.
